Sunday: Who Is Jesus?
Monday: Seeking Christ.
Tuesday: Facing Life's Most Vital Question.
Wednesday: Christ Also Saved the Church.
Thursday: Eternal Life, the Gift of God.
Friday: What Will You Do With Jesus?
The public is cordially invited to attend these services.

HEALTH HINTS

Doctors tell us that we are better off if we relax and take it easy all the time. This is doubly important during the hot summer months.

After 40 it is agood idea to go easy on strenuous exercise taken in the sun during the heat of the day. Even if you have been doing this sort of thing all your life, you will be wise to desist. Play your tennis or golf during the cool morning hours or in the late afternoon after the sun has spent its most burning rays.

Plan meals that are cooling, but always include one hot item. This stimulates digestion. Your heavy meal is best not eaten just before you go to bed, as it will cause a restless night. The best idea is to have the heavy meal at noon and a salad, with skim milk or fruit punch for supper. This is not often possible in the cities where the men must stay in town all day. To best this, try to have your dinner no later than 6 o'clock.

Take advantage of all the lovely fruits and vegetables available this time of the year. They are not only good tasting, but are good for you.

PROGRAM OUTLINED FOR RURAL MINISTERS

Dr. Alfred P. Fernbach, Woodrow Wilson Department of Foreign Affairs, University of Virginia, will be the first evening speaker at the 29th annual rural ministers' summer school at VPI, July 7.

His address will be "Responsibility and Security in International Affairs."

The summer school is held annually at VPI, and is designed, says Dr. Ronald R. Fessler, rural sociologist at VPI Agricultural Extension Service and director of the school, to provide an opportunity for ministers and their wives to learn how to do a more effective job in the rural church and community.

Other evening speakers for this year's session will be: Rev. Richard W. McKay, chaplain, Southwestern State Hospital, Marion, who will discuss "Religion and Mental Health," July 8; Dr. James M. Carr, Board of Church Extension, Presbyterian Church in the United States, who will discuss "Church Finance," July 9; and Rev. S. J. Walton, professor of practical theology, Duke University, who will discuss "The Church Faces the Modern Day," on July 10.

Each morning of the summer school will be devoted to a work conference using six informal work groups under experienced leaders. The morning programs are being set up under the supervision of Dr. Tom Bennett and the Rev. W. Randolph Thornton, officials of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States, both of New York.

Scholarships for the school are provided by many denominational headquarters, by local Ruritan Clubs, and by other organizations. Applicants who want scholarships should investigate local possibilities before writing to the director of the school at Blacksburg. The sessions, which are inter-denominational, are sponsored by The Virginia Council of Churches, Ruritan Clubs of Virginia, Southern States Cooperative, and the VPI Agricultural Extension Service.

PEACH PRODUCTION IMPORTANT IN STATE

Peach production is an important industry in Virginia, reaching 1,500,000 bushels annually, say VPI agriculturists.

Just after 1900 the volume of peaches produced in Virginia dropped off and remained at a low level until about 1935. During this 10-year-period from 1935 to 1953 the volume of peaches produced in Virginia nearly doubled, and has remained at this high point ever since.

HAYING OPERATIONS CAN BE SPEEDED UP

The late wet spring has caused more-than-usual interest in ways to speed up the hay harvest, says Easley Smith, assistant agricultural engineer at VPI.

Here are his suggestions:

Have your equipment ready to go when the weather is right. Check all adjustments, including the register and lead of the cutter bar, belt tensions, knife hold-down clips on the cutter bars, etc.

Lubricate as required, being careful to check all gear boxes to see that the oil is clean and filled to the correct level with the proper lubricant. Drain and replace if necessary.

Replace old, obsolete, or worn-out equipment, and add equipment as your needs increase. Set up a definite plan to buy equipment. You can stagger purchases to prevent the need for an unusually large expenditure in any one year. By doing this you can avoid many of the costly time delays caused by breakdowns in worn-out machinery.

Match your equipment, size to size, and one operation to another. For instance, avoid having an unusually large capacity baler with a small underpowered tractor to pull it. Govern your machinery purchases by the amount of use you will have for the particular machine.

Consider some of the newer machines to see if they fit into your haying operation. If you have enough acreage you might want to buy a hay conditioner. If you like round bales, you might want to buy one of the new models which has a continuous baling operation. Or you might like one of the new windrow balers which bales half-size bales and pitches them into a wagon pulled behind.

There are many other new features in machinery on the current market. Investigate, and buy carefully, Smith cautions.

CORN STILL TOP SILAGE CROP

Corn is still the best full season silage crop for general use in Virginia because of its consistently high yield of high quality silage.

Agronomists at VPI say other crops are not recommended in preference to corn for silage where corn can be planted at the normal time and recommended production practices can be followed. However, many farmers have requested information about specific mixtures, planting rates, and methods of planting on other soils based on current experts' suggestions.

Corn (10,000 and sorghum (8 rows; sweet sorghum (5 pounds) in mixture; sorghum (20 pounds) and soybeans (40 pounds), and broadcast; sweet sorghum (30 pounds) and Sudan grass (10 pounds).

Sudan grass and pearl millet are other mixtures suitable for silage, but in most cases have yielded less than corn crops or mixtures.

What is a cloudburst a weather condition rather an ordinary

A cloudburst is defined as a heavy fall of rain. In some cases a cloudburst is accompanied by a hail storm. Usually a cloudburst is accompanied by thunder and lightning and is often referred to as a thunderstorm.

What is called a cloudburst usually takes place when a high thunderhead releases its contents in large drops (especially during the beginning) of rain. Usually there is actually no warning of what people are going to call the unusually heavy rain.

The term cloudburst is mostly folklore.

Sharp - Ferguson

Liberty Baptist Church in Appomattox was the scene Friday afternoon, May 16, at 6:00 for the wedding of Miss Maxine Ferguson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse E. Ferguson, and Roy Lee Sharp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lacey R. Sharp, all of Appomattox.

Dr. Carl A. Collins, of Marion, Va., performed the double ring ceremony against a background of palms, basket arrangements of spring flowers, and candelabra. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina length dress of frosted nylon, with a permanent pleat of net extending from the waist to the hemline. Her shoulder length veil fell from a small pillbox hat, and she carried a bouquet of red carnations. The only attendant, Miss Inez Ferguson, sister of the bride, wore a pink organdy princess style dress, with matching long sleeve jacket. Her flowers were white carnations.

Miss Peggy Godsey, pianist, presented the program of wedding music.

Herbert Handy was best man. Ushers were Taylor Giles, brother-in-law of the groom; Therman Arrington, Samuel Doss, and Jimmy Rogers, all of Appomattox.

After the wedding, a reception was held in the church social hall for members of the family and close friends. For their short northern trip, Mrs. Sharp changed to a white sheath dress, with a corsage of red carnations from her bouquet.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Sharp are graduates of Appomattox High School, and he served four years in the U. S. Air Force and was discharged in December, 1957, as staff sergeant. He is now employed in Lynchburg. Mr. and Mrs. Sharp are at present making their home with his parents.

College graduates will soon be starting out to look for that first important real job. It is very important for them to look the part. A well scrubbed face and a hopeful heart is not enough.

Aside from an ability to do the job, neatness is the key to all job interviews. This may not come as easily as one would think to a former student, after four years of wearing mosaky sweaters, skirts and sneakers.

Most wardrobes will need a complete re-vamping. A tidy head, the polished pump, clean gloves, and the handbag that dots not bulge, all these are an important part of that first impression. Under the heading of good grooming, the job seeker will do well to renew the gloss on her leather pumps and handbag. It is a good idea to carry an extra pair of white gloves for the bandbox appearance.

If you are a job applicant, try to be dressed as if you are ready to go to work on the spot. Dangling bracelets and earrings are definitely out. Makeup should be as natural looking as possible — no eyeshadow or eyeliner is a good idea. Save these for your play hours.

Conservative dress for all job interviews is the word. Do not smoke unless a cigarette is offered by the interviewer.

The egg-beater and chrysanthemum haircuts and the over-the-eye shoulder-length pageboy styles are for glamour girls. It is best to wear a hat, for it will give you that finished look.

Be well dressed, well mannered, and willing to do the job necessary and chances are you will have no trouble landing the job you want.

More motor vehicles are used in the distribution of milk than any other commodity. Around 190,000 trucks are used in delivering milk and dairy products from farms to plants and from plants to consumers.

About The Home

Most of us think that summer is the moth season. This is not true, however, for moths can breed at temperatures as low as fifty-five degrees. For this reason, it is important to keep moth crystals that kill by gas asphyxiation in closets, chests and garment bags the year around.

Household items such as mattresses, wall-to-wall carpeting and upholstered furniture should be sprayed several times a year with a reliable insect spray.

Moths and silverfish, the rayon and paper-eating insect, are not killed by unpleasant odors. They are killed by direct contact with sprays and by gas as crystals evaporate in airtight places.

Silverfish breed around bathroom tile and cement. Ordinary bathroom cleansers have no effect on them, so a spray should be used here, too.

The proper amount of nuggets or crystals is about one pound for every one hundred cubic feet of space. The gases do not rise, so the crystals should be placed at the top of the garment bag and folded in with each fold of blankets or draperies.

Most modern vacuum cleaners have spray attachments which can be filled with crystals and do an excellent spraying job.

The best way to go about storing clothes and household articles is to first make sure the garments are perfectly clean. Then — sun them for a couple of hours, if possible. Next — spray them and place in airtight storage bags with a generous supply of crystals or nuggets at both the top and bottom of the bag.

There are around 20,000 milk distributing companies in the United States and about 35,000 plants processing milk, butter, cheese, ice cream, and other dairy products.

NEWS FOR VETERANS

A new drug for treating arthritis, rheumatism, and allergies is especially suitable for old people and others with heart conditions, Veterans Administration reported.

VA said research at the VA center in Martinsburg, W. Va., has produced definite evidence that triamcinolone, a newly developed drug of the cortisone family, can be used safely for heart patients.

Dr. Thomas H. McGavack, chief of intermediate service at the Martinsburg center, said triamcinolone can be administered even to oldsters with severe heart failure without doing harm.

Most of the anti-inflammatory drugs related to cortisone make the condition of heart failure patients worse by increaing retention of salt and water, Dr. McGavack said.

The finding on triamcinolone is one of the results of a multi-pronged program of research into problems of aging conducted by Dr. McGavack at the Martinsburg center during the past year.
